Subject: confusion regarding first language

Dear [REDACTED]

thanks a lot as you have read this email. you may well be aware of the issue i am willing raise by just looking at the subject field.

i am an international student currently in the final year of the LLB law degree. i have been in london for last 6 years and while studying full-time in a British institution, i have been working part time in a english environment too. i am applying for the BPTC this year, however; i am not too sure what is it meant by first language. even though i completed my secondary and higher-secondary education in Bangladesh with Bengali language, i had always been using english with my parents, friends and so forth since i was a child. i feel comfortable and even prefer English over other languages.

can i put English as my first language ? any help is greatly appreciated.

Yours faithfully,

Dear Sir

This is [REDACTED] writing from Bangladesh. I would like to state that the recent requirement of BSB for the BPTC which is IELTS 7.5 is being a very tough situation for students. I would request you to please low down the requirement if possible to a reasonable extent so that students from Asian countries can come and study BPTC. In our country most of the students choose to study UK LLB only because they want to become Barrister, and those who dont they usually study the Bangladeshi LLB. Due to this high score of IELTS many students are being discouraged to choose to study BPTC as well as Law. In such a situation we request you to please low down this requirement for the betterment of students of Bangladesh,

Thank You

Dear Sir/Madam,

We are a group of students writing to you regarding the inadequate standards of the BVC/BPTC course. Our complaint is centered on the guidelines for International students who come to undertake the course. Since we have started the course we have found it very difficult to focus on our course where a group of International students have been granted admission without the IELTS requirement. We understand that for some International students it is a requirement to study in the UK for them to practise. We have come across students with 7.5 who are coping very well on the course, so it is evident that our provider is giving places to students without the score. Furthermore, we have contacted other students in different institutions who have confirmed that there has been International students admitted without the IELTS score. We have spoken to such students who think they can get away because they have paid for the course.

We hope that you would be kind enough to look into these problems as it is hindering our own studies, tutors are spending considerable time focusing on the basics so they understand the topic, this is leaving us with small amounts of time to focus on the course on a deeper level. This is an anonymous email address but we hope our concerns will be addressed.

Hi

ouble staa

I am a law student and successfully completed my LLB with a 2.2. Many students like me offered for BVC from different institute, but at-last unfortunately we cannot make a way to the BVC because of the IELTS requirements, fixed by the BAR STANDARD BOARD. Now we come to know that few institutes maintaining the double standards such as ICSL and Northumbria. Few Bangladeshi students demanded English as their first language, if they will sit for IELTS, no one will able to achieve 6 also, but after that they got a chance for anyone's dreaming course. It's come to our knowledge that few students are entered by telephone interviewing. The interview was really a funny one and just asked only 2 questions like what is your name and why do you want to do BVC. If it is seems equivalent with IELTS 7.5 to the Bar Standard Board, then we have nothing to say but doing injustice towards few people who are going to miss their one year. So far we know that, this year it should not be happen, and if it is so then what is our fault, why are we out of this course. Few people just avoid the deposit money as because they are frequently answered that they would not going to consider .5 also. Now what was their fault in that particular case. So what we will do, we have our degree but few people are going to be a Barrister with 33 marks in a subject like jurisprudence. We are just speechless and heart is bleeding.

We will be pleased if anyone can explain us why this double standard are maintained and why Bar Standard Board doing like this.

Dear sirs,

Hi! I am one of the student who is studying LLB under University of London External Programme at Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. I did my registration to university of London on September 2005. I would like to have some enquiries as below:-

- 1) "Graduates must have passed all subjects in not more than 3 attempts" means the maximum of the attempts are 3 times? Correct? And sitting on the 3rd times for the attempts still can be able to apply for London BAR? And taking referral paper is not to be counted as an attempt right?
- 2) What is the limitation period of time to apply for the London BAR after graduating from LLB?
- 3) The requirements for student who is registered for LLB under University of London External Programme in September 2005 are only to take European Union Law and get the classification for at least 2nd class lower right?
- 4) There are four ancient Inns of Court : Gray's Inn, Lincoln Inn, Middle temple and Inner Temple. The entry to the Inn is depend on the results? Which Inn is the best and need the top requirements? And each time can apply how many Inns?
- 5) To apply London BAR, the student needs to request an application pack through the Centralised Applications and Clearing Scheme (CACH) first? How to get the application pack through CACH for a student from Malaysia? And what are the ingredients for the application pack? Can a Malaysia applies it via using internet?
- 6) "Before commencing Bar Vocational Course (BVC), applicants must have joined an Inn of court as a Student Member" means applicants need to apply to be a student member under an Inn 1st before applying BVC? Should the applicants apply the Inns directly that the applicants intended? After being a member of Inn, the applicants will automatically commence into BVC?
- 7) Before applying the Inns, the applicants need to apply the local universities in UK 1st?
- 8) Is the Bar Standard s Board (BSB) same as BVC? What are the requirements to enter BSB? Is the BSB will start on 2011?

Looking forward for your prompt response regarding the queries that I mentioned as above. Your kind assistance to this matter will be appreciated.

Thank you.

Email address: [REDACTED]

dear sir/madame,

i have got a specific question. i know your ielts rule but i am confused my its discriminatory application.

i am a prospective applicant so i need to have a clear idea about this.

suppose in some small bptc provider they asked students to go for ielts by seeing their passport. they did not consider anything. a lot of students are doing bar every year (from commonwealth nations), the fact is this common wealth countries also use english their official and first language. so how you can refer them for ielts??? this year a lot of students got this ielts referral after their induction. even before any assessment. they told that they need to show BSB that they have done it. SO NOW SOME STUDENTS ARE THEIR SCAPEGOAT!!!! WHAT A WAY TO CHEAT??? i can tell you that you need to scrutinise this issues. Large provider like city law school doesn,t bother about this rule as long as one have effective english skill.

sir, from the office sometime you can,t find what,s happening in the grassroot label, that,s for sure. so i think you need to examine whats happening inside bpp, college of law.

if hundreds of city law student can do this then why not others as long as they possess effective english? is this not a discrimination???????

thanks

Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for your response to my email. I am fully delighted to acknowledge the fact that the Bar Standards Board and the Providers of the BVC are working together to ensure the entry requirements are maintained.

Relying on your assurance that all information I supply to you will be dealt with in a confidential manner I am ready to inform you some of my fellow candidates' names so that it becomes easy for you to monitor the situation.

Candidates like [REDACTED], [REDACTED], [REDACTED] and more four or five candidates with the help of their respected teachers are planning a solution to avoid the IELTS requirements and get easy access to BVC by claiming English as their First language which I fear is completely untrue.

I request you to take strong action against them and allow genuine candidates to study BVC.

Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for your e-mail. We fully appreciate the fact that you have informed us of your concerns regarding the IELTS requirements. From 2009, when enrolling on the BVC, all candidates for whom English or Welsh is not their first language must demonstrate that they have attained a minimum 7.5 IELTS standard in all sections of the academic test. We are asking candidates to bestow an honest response to the Provider regarding the details of their first spoken language.

The BVC Course Specification Requirements and Guidance states that 'subsequent to being admitted to the BVC, should the BVC provider consider that a student's language ability is unsatisfactory, it may require the student to take the IELTS (at the student's cost)'. If the student then fails to achieve a score of 7.5 in all sections of the IELTS test the student may be asked to withdraw from the course. This will obviously have financial implications for that candidate.

I hope this information has reassured you that the Bar Standards Board and the Providers of the BVC are working together to ensure the entry requirements are maintained.

Subject: Deception Regarding IELTS!

Dear Sir/Madam

I am fully aware that from 2009, all candidates for whom English is not their first language must demonstrate that they have attained a minimum 7.5 IELTS in each component of the examination. But I regret to inform you that a number of my fellow Bangladeshi candidates who got BVC conditional offers regarding IELTS requirements from City Law School are now avoiding IELTS by claiming that English is their First language! Many students already informed them about it and now waiting for their offer letters.

I understand that it is a clear deception and I have responsibility to inform you. I strongly believe that a candidate should achieve a place in BVC only on his/her own capability and not relying on untrue events.

I therefore request you to take strong action against this wrong doing and allow fair students to get a place in BVC.

She states she has 6.5 IELTS, and the course director says 7.5 is needed. Then gradually he softens, and asks her to confirm that English is in fact her first language. Which she does. Now (20 Nov 09) it seems she does not have Inn membership either.

The BSB requirement is that if English is not your first language will need to do IELTS. We don't have any flexibility at all.

The current conditions apply not those which have now been superseded.
It is therefore vital that you make sure you fulfil the IELTS requirement.
I'm sorry I can't be of more help on this occasion.

Please note that I have secured a place at the BPP Law School since Year 2007 and have had two deferrals due to circumstances. The IELTS was not one of the requirements. I have struggled to get the local leaves from the Bank where I am working, I have fulfilled all the requirements to obtain the unconditional letter from the BPP Law School and even paid an additional amount of GBP3,210.- as per requirement, to get a student visitor's visa. I have paid my air ticket and I am about to leave on next Monday to be on time at the BPP Law School in Leeds for the induction course of 3-6 September 2009. What shall I do now?

Dnia 9-11-2009 o godz. 11:53 [REDACTED] napisal(a):

Dear [REDACTED]

I have contacted my BVC provider and I was advised the following:

As you know the BSB require that all students for whom English or Welsh is not their first language attain a minimum 7.5 in all sections of the IELTS test. The requirement is very strict. If a student were to declare that English/Welsh is their first language when that is not the truth, that dishonesty would be taken very seriously. The student would be caught out by the BVC Provider (and/or possibly by the BSB when they visit) and the student would face expulsion from the course. The BSB would report the matter to the student's Inn and the student would in all likelihood be permanently expelled from being a member of an Inn of Court too.

The Bar is a profession based on honesty which requires strict adherence to the Bar Council's Code of Conduct.

I understand that the following, but I find a definition of English as a first language unclear. I understand that certain concession can be made, in case of education and communication with family members, but what if I want to benefit from such concessions and in the same time not fall short of the Bar Council's Code of Conduct. Is there a safe regulatory procedure that I can undertake? Finally, I find these sanctions disproportionate, considering the lack of publication. Having I not enquired the matter with provider, I might have face very adverse disciplinary consequences. I am not sure whether this is appropriate as far as principles of criminal law are concerned.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

[REDACTED]
Hi there,

If you feel that English is the language that you speak primarily, then you can make a declaration that English is your first language, which will release you from the initial requirement to take the test.

You should be confident in your grasp of English language, as if it is not strong enough, and you commence the BPTC, you can be required to take IELTS at any stage of the course. If you then do not score 7.5 in each section, you can be asked to leave the course, along with any financial implications this may incur.

I hope this information is useful, however if you have any other queries regarding the BPTC, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Best regards,

Dear Both

We have recently had our first batch of practice assessments and there are a number of students about whom we have concerns in relation to their use of English. You will know from what I have said previously that I feel in a bit of a difficult position because I am not clear what is meant by the definition of "first language".

I would be very grateful if you could advise me as to what should be done in relation to these students.

many thanks

This is to confirm [REDACTED] response.

If there are concerns about the standard of English then the student (as in the 'Golden Book') they must be required to take the test – and leave if they do not achieve minimum of 7.5 in each section.

ie no need (at this point to define first language). But it would be interesting to see if any are required to take the test who have declared that English was their first language. Please let us know.

Dear [REDACTED]

We suggest that if a Provider has concerns about a student's English language abilities that they ask them to take the IELTS and if they do not achieve 7.5 in all sections, to remove them from the course. I agree that the "first language" thing is very difficult, but you would not need to approach it in that way.

If it helps [REDACTED] had a similar case last year and [REDACTED] dealt with a couple as well.

Dear Sir, I am an overseas student, doing my LLB Honors from Northumbria University UK. Currently I am a final year student planning to apply for BPTC this year, for 2010-2011 session.

Recently, I saw the BPTC application form, which was released on 2nd November.

In the form I found that there are 8 essays (mandatory) an applicant has to write about himself.

1. Please confirm your level of language and computing skills.
2. Please detail any mini-pupillages or other Bar related experiences that you have undertaken.
3. Please describe what you understand the work of a barrister to involve.
4. Please explain why you want to train as a barrister.
5. Please provide specific examples of your ability to quickly and accurately analyse large amounts of written information.
6. Please provide specific examples of where you have advised or helped an individual in distress.
7. Please provide specific examples of how you have developed your advocacy and public speaking skills.
8. Please describe a time when you have been particularly under pressure and how you organised your work.

Can you please, give me some guide line on how to write these essays, what possible things an applicant, being a student, can write on these areas. It will be very helpful for me, if you can site some examples on each of the areas, so that I can get a clear idea.

Dear [REDACTED]

Whilst I sympathise with your situation, I'm afraid the Wood group concluded that 7.5 in all sections of IELTS was reasonable, suitable and necessary. The requirement has been decided, written and stands consistently for all applicants.

There are many others in your situation and the rules and requirements must be consistently and comprehensively applied to all.

The requirement does not have exceptions for education or compensation for close marks. I'm afraid my only advice would be work on the areas in which you did not score 7.5 and re sit the IELTS test.

I'm sorry this is not the answer you are looking for, but we must treat everyone exactly the same and we must apply the regulations of the Wood group fully.

Kind regards

Subject: IELTS RESULT MINIMUM REQUIREMENT

Dear Madam,

I write with reference to the captioned matter.

I would like to submit that recently I was offered a place in the Bar Professional Training Course (BPTC) from the City Law School (CLS) and it was a conditional offer which required at least a lower second class degree, membership of the Inns of Court and a score of 7.5 in each section of IELTS test.

I would like to inform you that I have successfully met the above requirements. However, in regard to my IELTS result the CLS have some reservations which they wanted me to resolve from the Bar Standard Board. It is pertinent to point out that the Board has set an overall band score of 7.5 in IELTS (with two 7.5's in Reading and Listening whereas, two 7's in Speaking and Writing). It is my submission that although I did not achieve a band score of 7.5, I have studied English Language throughout my education. I have done O-levels and A-levels (University of Cambridge) and then I did my Bachelors in Law from University of London as an external student from Institutions where the mode of education was English and I have never had any problem with speaking or understanding English but just because I could not achieve 7.5 in my two sections and in fact what I have got are two 7's, my whole legal career is at stake. My contention is that the underlying reason of incorporating IELTS as the mandatory requirement of BPTC is to make sure that the candidate is well versed when it comes to verbal as well as written expression of English, therefore, my plea is that if my above mentioned reasons are satisfactory enough to prove my grasp on the English Language than I may kindly be granted some consideration and relaxation from this requirement as I just lag behind by a 0.5, that too, in just two sections. I am attaching herewith a Copy of my results of O-levels, A-levels, LLB Degree and IELTS result for your kind perusal, view and comments.

I am humbly requesting you to please consider my above submissions as becoming the Barrister at Law has been my passion, my dream and I have worked very hard for its achievement. It shall indeed shatter me if I am unable to pursue my heart felt desire which is at the verge of realization.

Thanking you in anticipation.
